

Faith: Not Instantaneous; A Process

Dr. Norman Lamm

Until two or three generations ago, for most Jews, faith might have been an e ent which, once achieved or born into, became a . Now it is an elusive goal, and religious belief is a that requires constant renewal.

“Faith and Doubt,” Dr. Norman Lamm

Is your own experience of faith and religious belief more similar to a state or a process? Why?

Do you think one approach to faith is preferable? Why or why not?

Consider the Malbim below on 7:14 .

· ' .

II. Earliest Complaints in the Desert

